CLEVELAND NOT ILL.

No foundation for the Alarming Reports in Circulation.

"I AM FEELING VERY WELL, BETTER THAN WHEN I CAME HERE."

This is the Utterance of the President at Gray Gables.

We talked with a World Correspondent on his Plaza Yesterday. His Head Unshaded from a Gale, His Face Bronzed by Sun, His Eyes Bright and Clear—While Watching the Storm He Walked the Plaza with a Firm and Vigorous Tread and Spoke of His Chance of Leaving the Seashore When the Storm Should Abate—He Is Vigorous in Body and cheerful in Spirit—The Vote on Repeat in the House Was Very Gratifying to him.

OFFICIAL TO THE WORLD! BUZZARD'S BAY, Mass., Aug. 29.—There is absolutely no foundation for the current reports of old stories that Mr. Cleveland is suffering with cancer or any other serious ailment.

Boston newspapers which have reached Buzzard's Bay contain the statement sent out from Philadelphia that an operation is now being performed upon Mr. Cleveland. The World correspondent had to day at Gray Gables, a long talk with Mr. Cleveland, and found him in excellent health, cheerful and vigorous.

It was late in the afternoon when The World correspondent reached Gray Gables. A curious gale was blowing, and E. C. Benedict's yacht lay tossing at her mooring a short distance off. Mr. Cleveland and The World correspondent watched the storm for a long while from the plaza off Gray Gables, and the President spoke of his chances of getting away as soon as it abated.

Mr. Cleveland was dressed in a dark gray suit and was hatless. His face showed the healthy bronzing of the salt water, and his eyes were bright and clear. He walked the plaza with a firm and vigorous tread and seemed to enjoy the strong breezes blowing in from the ocean.

As compared with his physical condition last winter when Mr. Cleveland was at Lake Winnipesaukee in his cabin, where The World correspondent saw him then, his health seemed more robust than ever, and he seemed to have less weight. He would be about the last person one would pick out of a crowd as a sick man, and The World correspondent told him so. Mr. Cleveland laughed and said:

"I am feeling very well; better than when I came here. I have been out on the water a good deal, but not so much as I hoped to be. Still I have made good use of that boat you see there, and have enjoyed the cool sea breezes."

"What do you think of the vote in the House yesterday on the Repetition Bill?"

"It is very gratifying," said the President. The story which found a new birth in the evening newspapers to-day began its career early last July. It was then said that Mr. Cleveland was suffering with cancer and that an operation had been performed. The story was denied promptly at Gray Gables by Dr. Bryant and Col. Lamont.

When Mr. Cleveland left Washington, soon after the opening of the extra session for the avowed purpose of rest and to escape the heat of the capital, stories that his health was seriously impaired found circulation in spite of official denials, but Mr. Cleveland's activity while here made them untenable. For several days since his return here Mr. Cleveland has been a very large portion on his boat. He has received numerous friends, conducted a large correspondence and kept a close watch of public affairs. It has been his habit, to the early breakfast at 6 and go out after breakfast in the Ruth to go home all day.

Dr. Bryant, Col. Lamont, L. Clarke Davis, Mr. Jefferson and E. C. Benedict have been with him at various times on these sea trips. Mr. Cleveland's determination to see the public and the conclusion which he enjoyed appear to have caused persistent public curiosity about his health. It was anticipated, however, when Mr. Cleveland bade good-by to Dr. Bryant last Saturday evening and came home to New York, that he would be ill again. This was true, but many predicted further "speculation" on the subject would set at rest.

Mr. Cleveland has taken an active interest in the management of his property at Gray Gables and will continue to improve it. This has been among the last subjects to receive Mr. Cleveland's attention.

What The Wants.

(From Judge.)

Mrs. Van Slyck—You don't mean to tell me you went to Delmonico's for supper after the theatre, and ordered ham and eggs?

Miss Greatorex (of Chicago)—Well, Mr. Tendler told me to order what I wanted, and that's what I wanted.

Good Evidence.

(From Pack.)

Mrs. Brickbrae—Some body must have given Mrs. Nedor a vase, lately.

Mr. Brickbrae—Why not? We are beginning to say "Vase."
